Felix RandalGerard Manley Hopkins (1844–1889)*Victorian

Ministering to Randal's soul, developed a sense of compassion + connection with the dying man. Recalls him being a big fellow = to most physically demanding job—shoeing large horses. Reflects on long illness + death of Felix Randal + comments on his own role (as priest) in caring for the dying man. More about Hopkins ministry. Ailments England 1885 cause of death

Sound Devices:

Poem demands to be read aloud. The rhythm of pauses and flow is made clear by the punctuation and word order.

In the first line, three points are made, separated by the commas and the question mark. The use of alliteration in 'hardy- handsome' (line 2), 'reason rambled' (line 3) and 'Fatal four' (line 4) not only increases the impact of the words due to their sound, but also due to the linking of these words.

The final two lines of the poem create a strong rhythm as the short phrases 'random grim forge', 'powerful amidst peers' (line 13), 'great grey drayhorse' and 'bright and battering sandal' (line 14) balance each other and cumulatively build the image of strength.

Poetic Devices:

A notable feature of this sonnet is the shift in tone. The opening line comes across as matter-of-fact, whereas the sestet provides a stark contrast as the raw feelings of the speaker become clear. The tone changes to one of loss and grief.

Hopkins uses his structure to establish some distinct contrasts. He shows us the strapping healthy Randal who once was 'powerful amidst peers' (line 13) and we can then draw the contrast with the 'pining, pining' (line 3) man who was broken by 'some/Fatal four disorders' (lines 3–4).

A contrast is also provided by describing the spiritual state of Randal who acquires a 'heavenlier heart' (line 6) after time spent with the speaker. This time spent together also causes the development of their relationship from perhaps one of mutual tolerance to a close one where each genuinely cared for the other.

Hopkins' use of compound adjectives like 'hardy-handsome' (line 2) gives his poem a liveliness and freshness. The diction of the last stanza lends power to the content, as the reader can visualise Felix Randal at the random grim forge' (line 13) performing impressive physical feats.
