QUESTION 3

- 3.1
- 3.1.1 This festival is also called 'the great night of Shiva' and is celebrated by a pilgrimage to Grand Bassin, a natural lake on the central plateau. Generally held in February, the pilgrims dressed in white proceed to Grand Bassin carrying a bamboo contraption on their shoulders as a sign of sacrifice.
 - 3.1.2 Mauritius' National Day is celebrated on 12 March each year. A big ceremony with parade and shows is organised every year in Port Louis.
 - 3.1.3 Celebrated by the Mauritian Chinese each January or February, this festival is dominated by the colour red, which symbolises happiness.
 - 3.1.4 Divali is celebrated by all Indo-Mauritians and a number of other communities. It was originally an Indian festival celebrating the victory of Lord Rama over the devil as depicted in the epic poem, Ramayana. Many Mauritians decorate their homes with small oil lamps or electric bulbs and cakes are cooked and shared amongst neighbours and parents.
 - 3.1.5 This religious festival is celebrated mostly by Indians of Tamil origin and is quite an event. After a period of ten days' fasting, participants go to the temple with their offerings on their backs. There is also a fire-walking ceremony that is performed by the Indo-Mauritians of southern origin.

- 3.1.6 Every year, the International Creole Day is celebrated to showcase the authenticity of the creole culture through local music, arts, language and cuisine. It runs during November and focuses on creativity and innovation

3.2 West:

Canyons, caves and chimneys: The west is the lee shore of Mauritius and, as such, enjoys the benefits of a year-round micro-climate. In this area, all dives are performed outside the barrier reef. The underwater landscapes of Flic-en-Flac have been formed by the currents; here, one will discover canyons, chimneys, and an impressive array of caves. Further down, close to Le Morne Mountain and up to Black River, the coral sites are more colourful than on the east coast and are often visited by dolphins.

East:

A spectacular concentration of species: Just off the east coast, the beautiful lagoon that runs along the coast is scattered with numerous passes through the reef, providing easy access to the deep sea. These areas are rich in plankton and attract a wide variety of pelagic species. Of all the passes, the Belle Mare Pass is arguably the most stunning. Diving here is a real experience due to the strong currents that exist around it and the spectacular concentration of fish and invertebrate life it draws as a result.

6.3	6.3.1	Cerf Island is the second largest island in this Marine Park. Named after the frigate “Le Cerf” commanded by Corneille Nicolas Morphey, who took possession of the Seychelles in the name of the King of France in 1756, the 290 acres of this island is divided into private plots. Day visitors relish the island’s excellent Creole restaurant and uncrowded beaches. Lush vegetation, shallow water and beautiful reefs ensure superb snorkelling, swimming and scuba diving. The l’Habitation Hotel and Cerf Island Marine Park Resort are also popular places for getaways.

A popular destination, Moyenne Island, just under half kilometres long, is privately owned. Among the lush vegetation of this wonderful tropical garden are the remains of early settler’s homes, pirates’ graves and a small, thatched chapel. There are also giant tortoises roaming freely, numerous birds and a reputed restaurant – all of which can be discovered along the 30-minutes trail surrounding the island and can also be found within a Marine Park.

Less than half an hour's walk will circumnavigate the small, rocky island of Round which boasts a popular Creole Restaurant. Round Island lies close to Moyenne and offers a spectacular underwater world for exploration.

Long Island was once the prison island of the Seychelles. Visitors must adhere to strict environmental measures.

St Anne Island is the namesake island with significant historical interest. (1 + 2) (15)
